

I oppose further media consolidation. The media is an area that thrives on less homogenization, not more. For Americans to get accurate and penetrating reportage of current events, we need to maintain widespread media ownership and resist the move toward consolidation in only a few large owners.